

Matt Ortiz
Leadership Scholarship Recipient
Brianna Glanzman
Whitehall, WI
University of Wisconsin-Madison

"I do know for sure that I want to do something in my life that makes a difference and I want to be a positive influence on this world. Receiving a degree from the University will be the first important step in reaching my goal."

Shone Almeida
Culver City, CA
David Geffen School of Medicine at UCLA

"I have gradually come to realize that there is so much I have gained from this experience. Of most importance is an appreciation of issues from a patient's perspective, an understanding that will help me as I work towards becoming a physician."

"CCC's scholarship fund provides support for young adult cancer survivors who can use their personal experiences in ways that enhance their careers and lives as they move from childhood into productive adults. I am honored to be part of the CCC review board. Selecting the recipients of the scholarships from such an outstanding pool of candidates is a difficult task indeed."

Lonnie Zeltzer, M.D., UCLA School of Medicine
Member of the CCC Scholarship Committee

care. commit. change.™

care. commit. change.™

We believe that these three simple words have the power to create a community focused on education, opportunity, positivity and hope for young adult cancer survivors.

For more information, or to make a tax-deductible donation please visit

<http://www.cccscholarships.org>

276 Washington Ave, #343 • Boston, MA 02108
866.540.1392 • info@cccscholarships.org

Closing the Gap between Cancer and College

Every cancer survivor deserves the chance to receive a college education. Yet the burden of medical debt, side effects of treatment, and limited access to financial and informational resources leaves many young adult cancer survivors with little hope of attending college.